LUTI Thursday, April 25 | Select one course from Session A and one from Session B

SESSION A 7:10-8:00 p.m.

- 1. Planning Board Primer: What You Need to Know
This course provides a basic overview of the responsibilities of Planning Boards.
- 2. Zoning Board Primer: What You Need to Know
This course provides a basic overview of the responsibilities of Zoning Boards.
- 3. Using Environmental Permits
Planning Boards do a lot more than review subdivisions, site plans and special permits. Increasingly these boards also issue permits to address specific environmental considerations including wetland activity, tree protection, steep slope disturbances, scenic roadway protection, etc. This presentation will address different types of environmental permits, their use and how their reviews differ from other Planning Board reviews.
- 4. Protecting Board Decisions
Consistent practices, through documentation and clear communications, help to support good decisions. This course provides an overview of the basics of administering land use applications including procedural considerations, managing public comment, the importance of minutes and writing defensible decisions.

SESSION B 8:05-8:55 p.m.

- 5. Working Sustainability Into Development Projects
Learn what is being done regionally concerning sustainable development and learn how to incorporate sustainable best practices into development projects of all scales.
- 6. SEQR: Coming in October - the New EAF Forms
Learn about the new EAF forms and other changes which take effect on October 7, 2013.
- 7. New Uses for Outdated Facilities
Learn the options and possibilities for repurposing vacant facilities and out-of-date land uses such as office buildings, commercial sites and institutional campuses.
